Customs hints on exporting shipments of household goods

1) EXPORT PERMIT :

- Export Permit application form
- Original Passport
- Original Resident Permit (issued for at least 12 months)
- Original Work Permit (issued for at least 12 months)
- Letter from your employer verifying your departure
- Authorization letter to Asian Express in handling the clearance of your shipment
- Copy of air or train ticket
- Original packing List

2) EXPORT RESTRICTIONS :

▪ Antiques & Refurbished Furniture

For many clients moving out of China, there is the issue of antiques. As a general guideline, anything from before 1949 can be considered an antique by Chinese authorities, and may therefore be prohibited from leaving China. It is often very difficult to determine just how old a piece of furniture or porcelain really is.

▪ Antiques Inspection

If you have purchased antiques, refurbished furniture resembling antiques, or any items that look old, you must have an antique inspection performed by the Antiques and Relics Bureau prior to Asian Express packing your shipment; otherwise your entire shipment may be detained by Customs for thorough inspection at the port resulting to delay, demurrage and other additional fees. Upon request, Asian Express can arrange for the antique inspectors from the Bureau to visit your residence for a physical inspection.

During the inspection, please ensure that anything that could be considered an antique is made available for the inspectors to examine. You must also present your original passport and pay the fees in Renminbi cash to the inspectors. If the pieces are permitted for export, an easy-to-remove wax seal will be placed by the inspectors on each item. Please do NOT clean nor wash away the wax as it is the proof of the items being inspected and approved for export. If the pieces are not approved for export, it may be confiscated immediately by the inspectors. It is advisable to have a person who speaks Mandarin (the local language) to be present during the inspection and to assist with the arrangements. Asian Express can assist in acting as a translator.

After the inspection, a Certificate listing the items that are approved for export will be given by the inspectors. Asian Express will submit the Certificate to Customs for export Customs clearance of your shipment. Please note that Customs at the port are not experts in identifying antiques. Therefore, if an item resembles an antique, but has not been inspected or approved for export and is detected by Customs in the shipment during inspection, the entire shipment may be detained by Customs for further inspection.

Please note that Asian Express will not knowingly pack items of antiquity and shall not be responsible or liable for any costs and/or consequences that may occur if any are detected by Customs.
